

Northwestern
OFFICE OF FELLOWSHIPS

Fellowship Winners 2021-22

Welcome to Northwestern University's Office of Fellowships!

You may wonder what a fellowship is. A fellowship can be

- a grant for a creative or research project
- a scholarship for an academic qualification
- an internship for professional development

What makes a grant, scholarship, or internship a fellowship is the cohort of people chosen to develop their talents, together with guidance from mentors, through group activities, and in support of a larger goal.

This booklet lists the hundreds of Northwestern students and alumni who secured external funding during the 2021–22 academic year to create, research, study, and intern through fellowships across the country and around the globe.

Fellowships are listed in four categories:

- those requiring students to apply first to Northwestern for endorsement before filing an application to a national competition
- those offering international experiences
- those funding recipients at domestic off-campus destinations
- those funding student activities on campus

We want you to join these fellowship winners and help us paint the world purple, one Wildcat at a time!

Elizabeth Lewis Pardoe, PhD
Director

*Year in parentheses after school name indicates date degree was received.
Abbreviated year after winner's name indicates current undergraduate class year.*

Meet some of our undergraduate winners

Senior Carina Biar, a neuroscience major, was one of four Wildcats to win the prestigious Goldwater Scholarship last year. This award honors the nation's leading undergraduate students in STEM disciplines and is providing tuition support for Biar's final year of study at Northwestern.

After becoming the first-ever Wildcat chosen for the Victory Congressional Internship, senior Dori-Taylor Carter spent the summer in Washington, DC, working for Congressman Alan Lowenthal. This year, she will complete her bachelor's degree with a major in American studies and minors in French and sociology.

With tuition support from the Benjamin A. Gilman International Scholarship, senior Lilliana Castillo is spending fall quarter studying abroad in Ecuador. Castillo, a learning and organizational change major in the School of Education and Social Policy, was one of several Northwestern students to win the award last year.

Alexander Chun, a senior in the Medill School of Journalism, Media, Integrated Marketing Communications with a second major in American studies, spent last summer working as a research assistant to a professor in Canada through the Fulbright-MITACS Globalink Program, one of two Fulbright awards open to undergraduate students.

Junior William Hoffmann, a student in the Weinberg College of Arts and Sciences with majors in computer science and economics, traveled to Germany last summer to work as a research assistant for a PhD student through the popular Deutscher Akademischer Austauschdienst Research Internship in Science and Engineering.

Sophomore Edwin Pokisa, majoring in learning and organizational change and data science, returned to his native Kenya last summer thanks to the Projects for Peace grant, which helps undergraduates design and implement their own development projects. He supported the members of his tribal community through an initiative that drew on their traditional production of honey and beaded jewelry.

Upon completing her bachelor's degree last spring with majors in journalism and history, Camille Williams is spending this academic year teaching English in Germany through the Fulbright US Student Program. Williams is one of several Wildcats that helped keep Northwestern among the top annual producers of Fulbright winners.

Meet some of our graduate student winners

Sofyan Ansori, a PhD candidate in anthropology, won the Mellon International Dissertation Research Fellowship, which will fund travel to Indonesia this year. Ansori's dissertation on fire governance in Indonesia focuses on how environmental interventions are embraced or contested by local and state actors.

PhD candidate in chemistry Kira Fahy is one of many Wildcats who last year won a grant from the National Science Foundation Graduate Research Fellowship Program, which offers tuition support, an annual stipend, and research funds. Fahy's award will support her work in the Farha lab, studying the design, synthesis, and application of metal organic frameworks for catalysis.

Dexter Fergie, a PhD candidate in history, had a year of fellowship successes, winning the Samuel Flagg Bemis Dissertation Research Grant, the Truman Library Institute Dissertation Year Fellowship, and the Gilder Lehrman Institute of American History Scholarly Fellowship. Fergie will use these awards for research in New York; Washington, DC; and France.

As one of four Wildcats to win the National Defense Science and Engineering Graduate Fellowship last year, chemistry PhD student Broderick Johnson will receive tuition support and a stipend from the program, which is designed to increase the number of doctoral candidates in disciplines of military importance.

With support from the Ford Foundation Dissertation Fellowship and Mellon Mays Undergraduate Fellowship Dissertation Grants, PhD candidate in screen cultures Golden Owens will complete her research on how intelligent virtual assistants, such as Apple's Siri and Amazon's Alexa, evoke and are haunted by Black women slaves, servants, and houseworkers.

Thanks to funding from a trio of awards—the Fulbright US Student Program, the Jeanne Marandon Scholarship, and the Millstone Research Fellowship—history PhD candidate Rachel Sarcevic-Tesanovic will travel to France and conduct research for her dissertation on French imperialism and the long 18th century.

PhD candidate in history Mikala Stokes will use the Library Company of Philadelphia Mellon Scholars Short-Term Fellowship and the National Society of the Colonial Dames of America Award for Graduate Study in American History to fund research for her dissertation on the political activism and lived experiences of free African Americans before the Civil War.
