

GLOBAL HEALTH STUDIES

2021-2022 HIGHLIGHTS

BY THE NUMBERS:

202

Adjunct majors graduated since inception in 2018

42

Classes offered on campus and abroad

95

Students graduated

19

Students participated in experiential learning through Chicago Field Studies and Engage Chicago

73

Students studied abroad as international activities returned post-pandemic

11

Students inducted into Phi Beta Kappa

414

Majors and minors enrolled in Global Health Studies

PROGRAM NEWS

- GHS welcomed Dr. Ivan Djordjević, from the Institute of Ethnography in Belgrade, Serbia, as the inaugural Radulovacki Global Health Visiting Scholar.
- GHS Director Dr. Bill Leonard was recognized as Mentor of the Year for his work in the Northwestern Program in Public Health.
- Dr. Sera Young was honored with the 2022 Norman Kretchmer Memorial Award in Nutrition and Development from the American Society for Nutrition.
- Global Health Studies adjunct major, Vivica Lewis, awarded the Circumnavigator Award for her project, "Birth Control Bans to Contraceptive Care."
- Dr. Sokhieng Au, a medical historian and public health practitioner focused on health and illness in the Global South, joined the faculty of GHS as a Visiting Assistant Professor.
- GHS students in Project Med won the first annual U7+ Alliance of World Universities Student Challenge.
- Prof. Sarah Rodriguez led two cohorts of her signature program, Maternal Health Research in London. (see photo above)