

NORTHWESTERN STUDENTS:

VISIT JAPAN OVER SPRING BREAK 2017 - FOR FREE

Quick Facts

Who: Students majoring in economics and/or political science with limited coursework about, and no significant travel experience in, Japan.

What: Program designed by Japanese government to stimulate new interest in Japan

When: March 20-27, 2017 - Apply by Dec 5, 2016

Where: Tokyo and other cities in Japan

The Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Japan and the Japan International Cooperation Center (JICE) have partnered with Northwestern University to bring 20 economics and political science students and 2 faculty members on a free trip to Japan during Northwestern's spring break.

This trip is part of a larger project called "Japan's Friendship Ties Programs," which organizes people-people exchanges between Japan and countries around the world. The goal of this trip is to promote a global understanding of Japan's economy, society, history, diverse culture, politics, and diplomatic relations among Northwestern students with no prior background in Japan.

To apply and for more information:

northwestern.edu/international-relations/global-initiatives/kakehashi-project.html