

Cari Lynn Hennessy

Northwestern University
Department of Political Science
601 University Place
Evanston, IL 60208
c-hennessy@northwestern.edu

Education

Northwestern University
Second year Ph.D. student in Political Science
Major: American politics
Minor: Methodology

University of Virginia
Bachelor of Arts, with distinction, 2006.
First major: Government
Second major: English Language and Literature

Conference Participation

Hennessy, Cari Lynn, and Martin, Paul S. "Blogs, the Mainstream Media, and the War in Iraq." Presented at the Annual Meeting of the American Political Science Association, Philadelphia, PA, August 31 – September 3, 2006.

Additional Research Experience

Research assistant for the Congressional Office Organization Project, under the direction of Paul S. Martin at the University of Virginia. June 2006 – August 2006.

Coursework in Methodology

Completed:

Linear Models, Northwestern University
Probability and Statistics, Northwestern University
Introduction to Statistics, University of Virginia
Political Analysis, University of Virginia

Currently enrolled:

Advanced Econometrics, Northwestern University

References

James N. Druckman, Professor of Political Science, Department of Political Science, Northwestern University. druckman@northwestern.edu (847) 491-2646.

Dennis Chong, Professor of Political Science, Department of Political Science, Northwestern University. dchong@northwestern.edu (847) 491-2642.

Paul S. Martin, Assistant Professor and Research Fellow, Miller Center of Public Affairs, University of Virginia. pmartin@virginia.edu (434) 924-6059.