The Film & Video Production program is an intense and rewarding experience for both students and instructors. Faculty Associates will be expected to teach afternoon elective courses in addition to assisting in a morning lab and evening core class. Other responsibilities include preparing for student arrival; attending faculty meetings; supervising student activities such as screenings, guest lectures, and field trips; and assisting other instructors as needed. The Film & Video Production faculty functions as a team. Together we provide students with an intellectually stimulating and socially engaging learning experience. Our schedule is a busy one, and previous faculty associates have found that the program occupies all of their time during its five weeks.
