

SPECIAL FEES FOR UNIVERSITY OF EDINBURGH STUDENTS WHO ENROLL IN THE COLLEGE OF SCIENCE AND ENGINEERING

The University of Edinburgh accepts “visiting students” into two of its Colleges – the College of Humanities and Social Science and the College of Science and Engineering. The requirement of the University is that visiting students will enroll for at least two-thirds of their credits (the normal full academic load being 60 Scottish credits per semester) in the College that admits them. The tuition charge for visiting students in the College of Science and Engineering is £1,425 higher than the charge for students admitted to the College of Humanities and Social Science. Arcadia will charge this "extra course fee" to Northwestern University students who take at least two-thirds of their credits in the College of Science and Engineering. Arcadia will directly bill this course fee to students after they are enrolled and have started classes.
