

Peer Academic Coach

Description

Our peer academic coaches meet one-on-one with individual students as assigned to help them refine and enhance their academic strategies and work productively through any academic challenges they experience. Read about the Coaching program here.

Job Duties

The peer academic coach will:

- Attend and participate in yearly coach training (up to a half day).
- Meet with assigned students up to once per week, on a mutually agreed upon schedule, for coaching sessions.
- Submit check-in reports to Program Manager after each coaching meeting.
- Attend required group and one-on-one coach training meetings each quarter.
- Regularly check and respond to emails.
- Coach each student with professionalism and a commitment to the learning and well-being of the student.

Qualifications

The Peer Coach must:

- Be a Northwestern University undergraduate student.
- Be in good disciplinary standing with Northwestern University.
- Be committed to fostering learning environments where students with a wide variety of social identities feel valued and included.
- Be committed to growing and improving as a peer leader over the year.
- Have outstanding interpersonal skills.
- Be committed to helping other Northwestern students succeed.

Dates of Employment

The Peer Coach must commit to the role for the entire academic year.

Compensation

- The Peer Academic Coach will be paid an hourly rate. Coaches must keep track of the hours spent on coaching (including training and professional development meetings) and enter their hours in Kronos; they will be paid biweekly.
- Students who are work-study eligible may elect to have their pay put toward their work-study allotment (this is optional, not required).
- Students with or without work-study eligibility are welcome to apply.
