The Waa-Mu Show: Romance En Route

“Romance en Route” follows six romantics on a journey through love, loss, heartbreak, and self-discovery in the City of Lights. By a chance of fate, Eve and Xander sit next to each other on their flight from Chicago to Paris. Meanwhile, their significant others, Lexi and Jenna, are in Paris competing for a high-stakes promotion. Alongside Tristan, a flight attendant with his head in the clouds, and Matthieu, a hotel concierge and part-time cynic, the two couples meet and are forced to confront fears, doubts, and unavoidable conversations. Will they find themselves—and the love they deserve—before they return home?

Northwestern’s oldest theatrical tradition, The Waa-Mu Show, provides undergraduates with an unparalleled education in new musical theatre development. More than 100 students participate every year as producers, writers, and performers in creating an original musical that inspires audiences, challenges the artists involved, and engages the surrounding communities. Now in its 92nd year, The Waa-Mu Show is a forerunner in the world of musical theater writing, giving undergraduate students a chance to serve as leaders in every aspect of the original production, from writing to orchestration to performance.

Where: Welsh-Ryan Arena/McGaw Memorial Hall, 2705 Ashland Avenue, Evanston, IL

Contact: Alivia Britton, AliviaBritton2025@u.northwestern.edu

We are so excited to be hosting our second Pow Wow on Saturday April 22, 2022, and to be in community with you all!

A Pow Wow is a family-friendly, intergenerational cultural celebration held by many Native and Indigenous communities. This event is open to all and is a space for Native and non-Native people to gather together to dance, eat, socialize, share art, be in community, and much more.

The Native American and Indigenous Student Alliance (NAISA) is a student organization on Northwestern University’s campus for Native American and Indigenous students and allies aiming to build a strong community. We also seek to increase visibility and awareness of our distinct cultures and the different experiences and challenges our communities face.

NUNC! 5 (Northwestern University New Music Conference)

April 21-23

One of the leading conferences for new music in the world, the Northwestern University New Music Conference (NUNC!) brings together composers, performing musicians, scholars, and other new music advocates for a series of workshops, panel discussions, and concerts.

The Institute for New Music’s fifth conference and festival, NUNC! 5, will feature guest composers Julia Wolfe and Alex Temple as well as guest keynote speaker Miki Kaneda (Boston University). Guest ensembles include the New York-based Yarn/Wire, who will present a concert, workshop and master class.

The Northwestern University Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Alan Pierson, will open the conference with a performance of Luciano Berio’s Sinfonia alongside Julia Wolfe’s Fountain of Youth and Anna Meredith’s Nautilus. The Bienen Contemporary/Early Vocal Ensemble, led by Donald Nally, will give the Midwest premiere of Julia Wolfe’s Letter from Abigail together with David Lang’s the national anthems. The conference will close with a Contemporary Music Ensemble concert conducted by Ben Bolter and Alan Pierson, featuring Julia Wolfe’s Impatience, Alex Temple’s The Man Who Hated Everything and Tania León’s Rítmicas.

Indecent

By Paula Vogel

Directed by Kelsey Leigh Ervi

Indecent, a deeply moving play with music, inspired by the true events surrounding the controversial 1923 Broadway debut of Sholem Asch's God of Vengeance — a play seen by some as a seminal work of Jewish culture and by others as an act of traitorous libel. Created by Pulitzer Prize-winning playwright Paula Vogel, Indecent charts the history of an incendiary drama and the path of the artists who risked their careers and lives to perform it.

Directed by Tor Campbell

This Pulitzer Prize-winning play examines race, class, and the costs of capitalism. In once prosperous Rust Belt town, a group of friends spend their lives sharing drinks, secrets, and laughs while working together on the factory floor. However, when layoffs and picket lines begin to chip away at their trust, the friends find themselves pitted against each other in a heart-wrenching fight to stay afloat. Sweat captures the ever-present battle between American racial dynamics and collective progress, asking if friendships can endure when all hopes of economic stability and mobility disappear.

Art Exhibitions and Discussions

Art Talks! With Block Student Associates – On Horizons

When: Saturday, April 8, 2023, 12:30 PM - 1:30 PM Central

Where: Block Museum of Art, Mary and Leigh, 40 Arts Circle Drive, Evanston, IL

Contact: Block Museum of Art, (847) 491-4000, block-museum@northwestern.edu
Journalism and Economics. Cognitive Science and Chemical Engineering.
Global Health and Political Science.

Inspired by Dario Robleto's consideration of the ways that art and science intersect to create new meaning, we invite you to meet a cross-disciplinary match-up of Block Museum Student Associates in our galleries for a close look at works on view in The Heart's Knowledge: Science and Empathy in the Art of Dario Robleto. Students will together discuss works that spark their curiosity and consider the ways that the works resonate with their own fields of study.

Today's talk will focus on works in the Horizons section of the exhibition.

Free, 45-minute talks take place in the gallery.

Programs are open to all, on a first-come first-served basis. RSVPs are not required, but appreciated, as they help us anticipate attendance numbers.

At the Limits of Life and Empathy: Dario Robleto and Malcolm MacIver

When: Wednesday, April 12, 2023, 4:00 PM - 5:30 PM Central

Where: Ford Motor Company Engineering Design Center, the Hive, 2133 Sheridan Road, Evanston, IL

Contact: Block Museum of Art, (847) 491-4000, block-museum@northwestern.edu
Northwestern Professor of Biomedical and Mechanical Engineering
Malcolm MacIver researches the relationship between sense perception, cognition, and evolution. This dialogue between the scientist and Dario Robleto will explore how art and science both contemplate—and seek to overcome—the physical and temporal limits of human life. The discussion will touch on the question of how art might provide a model for long-term thinking, especially in times of societal and ecological transformation.

Programs are open to all, on a first-come first-served basis. RSVPs are not required, but appreciated, as they help us anticipate attendance numbers.

Touring Multimedia Exhibition: Thomas Mann - Democracy Will Win

When: January 30 - March 30, All Day

Where: Deering Library, 1937 Sheridan Road, Evanston, IL

Contact: Courtney Essenpreis, (847) 491-7249, courtney.essenpreis@northwestern.edu

The Department of German presents the touring multimedia exhibition

Thomas Mann: Democracy Will Win, visiting the Northwestern Deering Library January 30th to March 30th.

Exiled to the USA during the Nazi regime, the German Nobel-prizewinning writer Thomas Mann was a powerful opponent of National Socialism and a committed champion of democracy. The current sociopolitical issues in Germany and the United States render his call for an active renewal of democracy "in thought and feeling" as relevant today as it was in 1933.

Film Screenings

Film Screening "The Genízaro Experience: Shadows in Light"

When: Thursday, April 6, 2023, 5:00 PM - 6:45 PM Central

Where: Kresge Hall, 1515, 1880 Campus Drive, Evanston, IL

Contact: Silvia Toledo, (847) 467-0891, silvia.toledo@northwestern.edu

Join the Latina and Latino Studies Program for a special advanced screening of the critically acclaimed film and a discussion session with the film's Director and Persons featured in the film.

This one-hour documentary film explores the origins of indigenous slavery under Spanish colonialism in New Mexico; the histories of those enslaved and captured (Genízaros); the construction of latinidad erasures of indigeneity; the healing practices of indigenous feminists, and the ongoing struggle of decolonization.

"Genízaros embody duality in the human condition. This story is one of ethnogenesis and cultural hybridity. A blending of spirits." - Gary Medina Cook, Film Director

"Queering the Holocaust." Film Screening and Q&A with historian Anna Hájková: The Amazing Life of Margot Heuman

When: Thursday, April 6, 2023, 10:30 AM - 12:00 PM Central

Where: Kresge Hall, 1515, 1880 Campus Drive, Evanston, IL

Queering the Holocaust: The Amazing Life of Margot Heuman

Film Screening and Q&A with historian Anna Hájková (Warwick University)

Sponsored by the Holocaust Educational Foundation of Northwestern University

Margot Heuman (1928-2022) was a survivor of Theresienstadt ghetto, Auschwitz, Neuengamme, and Bergen-Belsen. She was also the first lesbian Holocaust survivor to record her oral history. The Amazing Life of Margot Heuman is based on transcripts of that recording. It dramatizes the interactions between Margot Heuman and Anna Hájková, the Warwick University historian who recorded their conversation in 2019. Directed by Erika Hughes, the play offers a poignant view of the coming of age of a Jewish queer woman in Nazi concentration camps. In the play, filmed at another location and screened now at Northwestern, Heuman reflects on love, choices, sexual violence and sexual barter, homophobia, and survival. Moving, funny, pragmatic, and original, Heuman's testimony illustrates the many stories erased by homophobia and misogyny. "I am amazing," Heuman tells her interviewer, reminding us she may remain the sole lesbian to speak about her experiences in the Holocaust.

OUR HEAVENLY BODIES (1925) with live accompaniment

When: Thursday, April 20, 2023, 7:00 PM - 9:00 PM Central

Where: Block Museum of Art, Mary and Leigh, 40 Arts Circle Drive, Evanston, IL

Contact: Block Museum of Art, (847) 491-4000, block-museum@northwestern.edu

OUR HEAVENLY BODIES (1925)

WITH LIVE ACCOMPANIMENT BY STEPHAN MOORE, SCOTT SMALLWOOD, AND RIVES COLLINS, AND AN INTRODUCTION BY DR. KATHERINE BUSE

(HANNAS WALTER KORNBLUMM, 1925, 91 MINUTES, DCP, SILENT WITH LIVE SCORE)

RSVP

At once an astounding feat of visual imagination and a rigorous explication of celestial mechanics, OUR HEAVENLY BODIES represents an early and lasting pinnacle in the use of cinema as an educational medium. Director Hanns Walter Kornblum's silent 1925 masterpiece takes viewers on an interstellar tour from the distant corners of the earth to the far reaches of the known universe, offering as comprehensive and accurate representation of astronomical knowledge as cinema could produce. Created as a "kulturfilm"—a didactic form of cinema that emerged in Weimar-era Germany to promote public education and uplift—OUR HEAVENLY BODIES makes dramatic use of animation, multiple exposures, miniatures, and other special effects more commonly seen in the Expressionist films of Kornblum's contemporaries like F.W. Murnau and Fritz Lang. Stunningly restored by the Munich Film Archive, OUR HEAVENLY BODIES remains an unforgettable feast for the eyes and the mind alike, almost 100 years after its production.

For this screening, Block Cinema will welcome sound artists Stephan Moore (RTVF) and Scott Smallwood to perform a live original score to the complete film; English narration of the film's intertitles will be performed by Rives B. Collins, Professor of Theatre at Northwestern University.

OUR HEAVENLY BODIES will feature an introduction by Dr. Katherine Buse, postdoctoral researcher at the Institute for the Formation of Knowledge at University of Chicago. Dr. Buse studies how ideas about nature and planetary systems are negotiated between the sciences and other parts of culture, especially science fiction. She will place the film within a cultural history of planetary imagination, reflecting on the remarkable strategies that the film uses to depict different planetary environments.

International Feminist Peace Activism in Korea: Crossings Film Screening and Panel

When: Friday, April 21, 2023, 2:00 – 6:30 PM Central

Where: Harris Hall Room 107 & Room 108, 1881 Sheridan Rd, Evanston, IL

Contact: Jill Mannor, (847) 467-3970, jill.mannor@northwestern.edu

A screening of the film Crossings (2021) and panels with the film's director, featured activist, and scholars.

Time and location to be announced.

Crossings (2021), directed by Deann Borshay Liem, documents the peace activism of Women Cross DMZ, a group of international women peacemakers who walk across the demilitarized zone between North and South Korea to forge a path toward peace and reconciliation. Join us for the film screening and accompanying panels with the film director, featured activist, and scholars for a discussion on international feminist peace activism, Korea's history, and issues of militarism.

International feminist peace organizing efforts are a form of energy generated by the longer efforts to bring peace to the Korean peninsula. This event will address how the organizing efforts intersect with the artistic and scholarly energies surrounding Women Cross DMZ and Korean American organizers who have worked hard to sustain a lively and engaged community of diasporic organizers. How do we approach and recreate the energies of past direct actions towards future ones to end militarization and war in the region? Given militarism's global environmental toll as one of the largest polluters, and the complex eco-system that has developed in the DMZ, how might we consider direct actions of Women Cross DMZ as a conservational effort towards a greener future?

Descendant, film screening

When: Thursday, April 27, 2023, 5:00 PM - 8:00 PM Central

Where: Block Museum of Art, Mary and Leigh, Auditorium, 40 Arts Circle Drive, Evanston, IL

Contact: Nancy Cunniff, (847) 467-2294, onebook@northwestern.edu

The documentary Descendant, follows members of Africatown, a small community in Alabama, as they share their personal stories and community history as descendants of the Clotilda, the last known slave ship to illegally transport human beings as cargo from Africa to America. The ship's existence, a centuries-old open secret, is confirmed by a team of marine archeologists.

Margaret Brown and co-producer Kern Jackson will have a talkback with Professor Kate Masur after the screening.

Cosponsors: One Book One Northwestern, Department of Anthropology, Chabraja Center for Historical Studies, Program in Documentary Media, Department of History, Alice Kaplan Institute for the Humanities, Program in Latin American & Caribbean Studies, Department of Radio/TV/Film, and Department of African American Studies .

Where: Steppenwolf Theatre, 1650 North Halsted Street, Chicago, IL

Contact: Megan Morrell, megan.morrell@northwestern.edu

The Importance of Representation in Healthcare and the Arts

How Blood Go weaves the present and past together to explore the strained relationship between the medicine and African Americans in this country.

Just when Quinttasia is ready to take her wellness program, Quintessentials, to market, she learns that her healthy body is not the product of her hard work, but of a futuristic experimental device—activated without her consent—that makes her appear White to doctors and nurses. She must decide if she's willing to give up her Blackness to make her dream come true. Meanwhile, Bean and his brother, Ace, experience unethical medical treatment in the American South (the Tuskegee Syphilis Experiment 1930-1970).

Facilitated by Dr. Melissa Simon, this conversation will happen immediately after the performance of How Blood Go with members of the cast and creative, including Yolonda Ross, and additional subject matter experts discussing themes in the production and how it moves into our daily lives—the power of representation in healthcare as a key for health equity.

Registration is required to attend.

Performance will start at 3:00pm with a discussion to follow.

Arno Bornkamp and Kenneth Tse, saxophone; Casey Dierlam Tse, piano
Winner of the Silver Laurel of the Concertgebouw and the Netherlands Music Prize, and a founder of the Aurelia Saxophone Quartet, Arno Bornkamp has become an influential figure in the saxophone world over the course of his nearly 40-year career. Kenneth Tse is the recipient of the prestigious New York Artists International Award and a frequent soloist on five continents, making appearances with such ensembles as the Strasbourg Philharmonic Orchestra, the United States Navy Band, and the Hong Kong Sinfonietta. Both are advocates for new music, collaborating with composers including Jacob ter Veldhuis, Christian Lauba, Andrea Clearfield, and Guy Lacour on numerous commissions and premieres. They are joined by pianist Casey Dierlam Tse, an active collaborative artist who has also appeared with saxophonists Claude Delangle, Branford Marsalis, and Debra Richtmeyer, among others.

Their program's first half consists of traditional French repertoire alongside new works by American and French composers. The second half of the program features both beautiful and dazzling trios, combining the forces of two of today's most prominent international saxophonists.

Part of NUNC! 5 (the Northwestern University New-Music Conference)

Alan Pierson, conductor

The orchestra opens the first performance of NUNC! 5 with Anna Meredith's frenetic fanfare Nautilus, a work the composer describes as "a sort of call to arms (for myself!)."

The program continues with visiting composer Julia Wolfe's Fountain of Youth, commissioned by the New World Symphony and Carnegie Hall and premiered in 2019. Wolfe explains, "My fountain of youth is music, and in this case I offer the orchestra a sassy, rhythmic, high energy swim." The program concludes with Luciano Berio's Sinfonia, perhaps his best-known work. Composed in 1968-69 for the New York Philharmonic's 125th anniversary, Sinfonia was heavily influenced by the sociopolitical tumult of that time period.

Donald Nally, conductor; Jack Reeder, assistant conductor; Charles Foster, keyboard; with Zafa Collective

“I desire you would remember the ladies and be more generous and favorable to them than their ancestors.” Thus begins Julia Wolfe’s musical meditation on our struggle for women’s rights through the lens of a letter from Abigail Adams to her husband John—dated March 31, 1776—with half of the emerging nation’s population in the balance. Wolfe’s 2022 Letter from Abigail is paired with David Lang’s the national anthems, a collection of phrases from many nations’ anthems with one common thread: “Please don’t make us live in chains again.” Also on the program are Lang’s where you go, inspired by the well-known phrase from the Book of Ruth, and Michael Gordon’s Anonymous Man—a memoir chronicling the composer’s time in a neighborhood in transition, and his conversations with two homeless men living there.

Derrick Gardner and Kevin Fort, conductors

Composer, pianist, keyboardist, and occasional percussionist Chick Corea was a 27-time Grammy Award winner and a National Endowment for the Arts Jazz Master. His compositions “Spain,” “500 Miles High,” “La Fiesta,” “Armando's Rhumba,” and “Windows” are widely considered jazz standards. Derrick Gardner leads jazz studies students in arrangements showcasing the multitude of genres for which Corea was known. Pianist, composer, and bandleader Edward Kennedy “Duke” Ellington is considered one of the originators of big band jazz. Leading his Jazz Orchestra for over 50 years, Ellington wrote thousands of compositions, including jazz standards “Take the A Train,” “It Don't Mean a Thing,” “Caravan,” “In a Sentimental Mood,” and “Sophisticated Lady.” Kevin Fort leads jazz studies students in arrangements of Ellington's masterful compositions.

Part of the Tichio-Finnie Vocal Master Class Series

The San Francisco Chronicle praises tenor Matthew Polenzani's “wonderfully fresh and robust voice, with clarion top notes and a gift for sweet phrasing.” A recipient of the 2004 Richard Tucker Award, the Metropolitan Opera's 2008 Beverly Sills Artist Award, and a 2017 Opera News Award, Polenzani has established a reputation for elegant musicianship and dramatic commitment. The 2022-23 season sees him starring as Giasone in Cherubini's Medea and performing the title roles in Verdi's Don Carlos at Italy's Teatro di San Carlo and in Massenet's Werther at Houston Grand Opera. Other engagements include two highly anticipated role debuts, as Jean in a concert performance of Massenet's Hérodiade at Deutsche Oper Berlin and as Orombello in Bellini's Beatrice di Tenda at Teatro di San Carlo. In this master class, he coaches Bienen School voice and opera program students.

Mallory Thompson, conductor; Dylan Hong, soprano saxophone (Northwestern Concerto Competition winner)

Combining the twelve-tone technique of the Second Viennese School with Mozart's Eine kleine Nachtmusik, Cindy McTee's Notezart is a fusion of musical time periods. The program continues with the unabashedly optimistic finale to Bernstein's Candide, "Make Our Garden Grow." The first half of the program concludes with Nemmers Prize winner William Bolcom's Concerto for Soprano Saxophone and Band, featuring soloist Dylan Hong, a 2022 Northwestern Concerto Competition winner. The second half of the program is devoted to two dramatically different American works for winds: the recently discovered Octet for Brasses and Piano by Florence Price, and Aaron Copland's resplendent Emblems.

Symphonic Band

Shawn Vondran, conductor

The Symphonic Band's first concert of the spring is a celebration of American voices past and present, opening with Kimberly Archer's Fanfare Politeia — performed by the "President's Own" United States Marine Band for the 2021 Presidential Inauguration. Steven Bryant describes the program's second work, Alchemy in Silent Spaces, as "music of both personal and musical transformation." The program continues with two important American voices from the past: Morton Gould and Samuel Barber. Commando March is Barber's only original work for wind band, while the "West Point" Symphony is Gould's most important work for wind band and a pillar of the band canon.

Urania and the Ascelepiades: A Magic Lantern performance by Artemis Willis

When: Thursday, April 13, 2023, 7:00 PM - 9:00 PM Central

Throughout the 19th century and well into the 20th century—before and after the invention of cinema—audiences around the world flocked to scientific lectures illustrated by luminous magic lantern images. In Urania and the Ascelepiades, a magic lantern performance by Artemis Willis (in collaboration with lanternist Joel Schlemowitz), projected images from the fields of astronomy and medicine merge seamlessly on the screen, transporting us from the heavenly to the human and back, with possible detours. Created for The Heart's Knowledge: Science and Empathy in the Art of Dario Robleto, this performance explores how the lantern has connected popular audiences to the cosmos and microcosmos, often by way of ancient myths. Vignettes drawn from the work of women who lectured on the international circuit a century ago pay tribute to these underrecognized ladies of the lantern, while also creating new mythologies about women and screen media. Featuring original magic lantern slides and a c.1890 mahogany biunial (or double) magic lantern combining two projectors in a single device.

Following the approximately 30-minute performance, Willis and Schlemowitz will discuss the history of magic lantern performance, the use of projected images in scientific lectures, and the challenges and rewards of studying and performing with the lantern today. An initiative of the COOLIDGE CORNER THEATRE, with major support from the ALFRED P. SLOAN FOUNDATION.

Northwestern Music Academy

Learn more online

For more than 70 years, Northwestern University's Music Academy in Evanston has provided music instruction to children and adult students from surrounding communities and the greater Chicago and Northwest Indiana area.

Most Academy instructors also teach in the Henry and Leigh Bienen School of Music and hold masters and doctoral degrees in music teaching and performance. The Academy often serves as a teaching laboratory for college students enrolled in pedagogy courses and is a member of the National Guild of Community Schools of the Arts.

Kindermusik (newborn to age 6)

Dates: Term starts Jan 28 and ends May 13. Cost:

$300-355 (15-week class and home materials)

This 45-minute class is a lovely way for young children and parents to interact. Multi-level activities that are appropriate for each stage of a child's development give lap babies, crawlers, and walkers a chance to explore music, touch, sound, and movement. Home materials including a CD, a book related to the theme of the unit, and an instrument provide additional ideas for sharing the class experience at home.

Other Courses

(offered virtually and in-person Winter Quarter)

Piano and Organ

The Music Academy Piano Division offers pre-piano class, which serves as an introduction to more formal piano instruction: keyboard instruction in two tracks for students ages 6 to 18, and instruction for adults. Pre-piano serves as an introduction to more formal piano instruction. Keyboard instruction for children begins with pre-staff music and expands to landmark-based intervallic reading. After the first year of study, most children participate in the Illinois State Music Teacher's Association curriculum assessment, where they demonstrate skills and receive certificates and pins for participation.

Strings

The String Division offers private lessons in violin, viola, and cello, with goals of both providing musical instruction and instilling a love of music and of learning music. The division believes that all children can learn to their potential when placed in an environment that includes clear instruction, an involved parent, and regular opportunities to listen to and perform.

Workshops and Conferences

IDEAL Workshop on "Machine Learning, Interpretability, and Logic"

When: Thursday, April 13, 2023 - All day
Where: Mudd Hall (formerly Seeley G. Mudd Library), Mudd Hall RM 3514, 2233 Tech Drive, Evanston, IL 60208
Contact: Xiaolin Wang, xiaolin.wang@northwestern.edu

Synopsis

The field of interpretability aims to make algorithms understandable to humans, especially machine learning algorithms, which are often trained on huge datasets and have a large number of parameters. This workshop will explore connections between this topic and the program's theme of machine learning and logic.

The Chicago American Indian Community Collaborative (CAICC) is pleased to announce the 7th Annual Urban Native Education Conference on April 14-15, 2023. Our conference theme this year is Making Way for the Next Seven Generations. The seven generations is a concept and value held by the Haudenosaunee Confederacy among many other native nations around the world that asks us to take into consideration the impact that our decisions, actions, words, have on the next seven generations that have yet to arrive.

This concept pushes us to be deliberate and intentional in our decision-making and focused on long-term, future-oriented, sustainable solutions versus decisions that will only benefit the short-term. The concept of seven generations also takes into consideration the seven generations that were here before us, and to honor the dreams and wishes that our ancestors seven generations before made for us. This means that every generation is the seventh generation and so now is the time to live what your ancestors hoped for you.

Executive Education Impact Series: How ChatGPT and Generative AI Will Change Legal Services

When: Friday, April 21, 2023, 9:00 AM - 5:30 PM Central
Where: Levy Mayer Hall, 357 E Chicago Ave, Chicago, IL

Introducing a new joint Executive Education series created by Northwestern Pritzker School of Law and McCormick School of Engineering designed to help law firm leaders, lawyers, and other legal professionals understand and make the most of the computational technologies that are transforming the delivery of legal services.

This highly interactive executive education class will provide a deep dive into ChatGPT and language generation, including:

- Understanding at a functional level how ChatGPT and similar large language models and generative tools work
- Understanding the functional roles and impacts that generative tools can have on legal workflows—what the tools can and cannot do (today)
- Framing ChatGPT and generative tools within the landscape of technologies for Legal Services
- Capturing the benefits and managing the risks of ChatGPT and generative tools, including addressing lawyer professional responsibility requirements
- Advising your clients and establishing internal policies for using ChatGPT and generative tools
- Assessing the value of leveraging generative tools for new use cases
- Establishing a basis for making decisions about future innovations and offerings in this space

Please join the Research Initiative for the Study of Russian Philosophy and Religious Thought and the Department of Slavic Languages and Literatures for a conference in Evanston, April 21-23, 2023.

The NU RPRT Research Initiative fosters scholarship about the global relevance of Russian philosophy and religious thought. Our inaugural conference will take place at Northwestern University in April 2023. It will focus attention on how Russian writers—artists, philosophers, and religious thinkers—have reflected on the fate of the transcendent in modernity. We invite papers exploring any aspect of this topic, including the role of faith and reason in human self-understanding, in social philosophy, and in the search for an integral worldview. Conference participants should aim to produce papers suitable (in their final form) for publication in Northwestern University Studies in Russian Philosophy and Religious Thought, an online platform that will exist in two forms, an annual journal and a “research series” for works longer than journal articles.

Improve Your Data Literacy to Inform Instruction for Advanced Learners K-12

Are advanced learners in your classroom or school growing at an appropriate rate and how do you know? Does student readiness for instruction align with placement in enrichment or accelerated services? Are programs having the desired effect?

Accurate measurement of readiness and learning is important for all students, but typical grade-level assessments and reports are not used effectively or may not provide enough information to optimize instruction for advanced learning. Students who meet or exceed grade-level standards often look “fine” in school accountability systems even when they are not growing at a rate commensurate with ability.

This workshop for educators and school administrators, led by Northwestern Center for Talent Development Assessment Coordinator Melissa Hinshaw, will explore differentiated assessment approaches and data practices for informing classroom instruction; making decisions about services, including enrichment, and acceleration; and measuring growth for advanced learners.

Bring your data and your questions to this interactive workshop, and leave with the knowledge and resources to ensure your students can maximize their potential.

Chicago Language Symposium

The 25th Annual Chicago Language Symposium will be held on Saturday, April 29, 2023 on Northwestern University’s lakefront campus in Evanston, just north of the city of Chicago.

This year’s symposium is focused on Diversity, Equity and Inclusion (DEI) in the World Language Classroom and will discuss topics such as:

- Gender equality in the language classroom
- Differentiated instruction
- Post pandemic challenges
- Linguistic and cultural diversity in the language classroom
- Culturally responsive and trauma-informed teaching
- Equity and diversity in content-based instruction
- Confronting racial inequities in the language classroom
- Fostering inclusive learning environments
- “Translanguaging” in the heritage language classroom
- Supporting students with disabilities

The Chicago Language Symposium offers an opportunity for lively and sustained conversation amongst a modest-sized group participants over the course of the Symposium’s sessions. The Symposium has been conceived as a primarily in-person event. Participants will be able to attend remotely, however opportunities for remote-participant interaction during sessions will be limited. All presenters must attend in-person.

Policy is a powerful tool for systematically altering healthcare access and quality, but the role that policy (and its inseparable politics, polity structures, and policymakers) plays in dissemination and implementation science efforts is understudied. This presentation will describe policy-relevant framework adaptations researchers can use to investigate policy's role in implementation success. The presentation will also describe how policy-relevant framework adaptations are being used to guide research on tailored dissemination strategies to increase evidence-informed policymaking for opioid use disorder treatment.

Title

"Our Uncertain Eugenics: Population and Patient Dilemmas in the New Non-Invasive Prenatal Genetics"

Abstract

In barely more than a decade, non-invasive prenatal genetic testing (NIPT) has gone from biotech fantasy to a multi-billion-dollar industry available to most pregnant people in the US. This talk explores a series of overlooked social and ethical issues raised by the rapid expansion of NIPT screening. NIPT kits now often screen for a range of less well-understood conditions—like the Trisomy X, XYY, or 22q11.2 deletion syndromes—that are quite common, widely underdiagnosed, and include an untold number of mildly affected people. Many thousands of expectant parents will therefore have to grapple with true positive results that are at once undoubtedly serious and deeply uncertain. I draw on the history of prenatal genetic testing, and modern human genetics more broadly, to develop theoretical parameters for understanding: 1) how the burgeoning NIPT market will unfold; 2) how the deeply personal reproductive choices afforded by NIPT screening may unleash a new “secondary eugenics” with a cascade of complex, socially-patterned effects at the population level; 3) the very specific eugenic and social movement implications for communities and advocacy groups dedicated to genetic disorders.

Where: Online

Contact: Sonia Kim, (847) 467-0446, sonia.kim@northwestern.edu

Northwestern University's Querrey InQbation Lab is hosting the FoundHer Series to amplify women academic innovators & entrepreneurs.

Learn about Dr. Laura Schewel's experience spinning out StreetLight Data from her doctoral research at UC Berkeley in 2011. Dr. Schewel will share her story building her company into the market leader in transportation analytics over the course of 12 years and ultimately selling the company in 2022 to Jacobs Engineering Group (NYSE: J). Dr. Schewel will share lessons learned as a technical founder raising four rounds of capital, establishing a repeatable sales model, and building a team of 150.

While the FoundHer Series is focused on supporting women innovators, all are welcome to register.

Please register in advance.

OUR SPEAKER

Laura Schewel, Ph.D., is co-founder and CEO of StreetLight Data, the leading provider of on-demand transportation analytics. As CEO of StreetLight she has helped hundreds of transportation agencies, engineering firms, and private transportation companies put big data to work. Laura has worked in the advanced transportation sector for her entire career, focused on accelerating innovative transportation and energy solutions from the start-up, academic, governmental and non-profit vantage points. Prior to founding StreetLight, Laura worked at the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission and Rocky Mountain Institute on vehicle electrification and other transportation sustainability issues. She holds degrees in Engineering and Literature from Yale and has a PhD in Transportation Data and Sustainability from UC Berkeley.

NUTC Annual Patterson Lecture: Doug Waggoner - Chairman & CEO - Echo Global Logistics

41st Annual William A. Patterson Transportation Lecture
Featuring Doug Waggoner, Echo Global Logistics

SPEAKER:

Doug Waggoner has served as Chairman of the Board and Chief Executive Officer of Echo Global Logistics since 2006 and has contributed to making Echo a leading provider of technology-enabled transportation management. Prior to Echo, he founded SelecTrans, LLC, a freight management software provider. From 2004 to 2005, he served as the CEO of USF Bestway. Prior to this, he was the senior vice president of strategic marketing for USF Corporation. He also serves on the Board of Directors for the Supply-Chain Innovation Network of Chicago, a new organization emerging out of World Business Chicago's Plan for Economic Growth and Jobs. Waggoner holds a bachelor's degree in economics from San Diego State University.

LECTURE HISTORY:

The Annual William A. Patterson Distinguished Transportation Lecture is named for William A. "Pat" Patterson. In 1980, the NUTC established the Lecture as an integral part of the Patterson Endowment. It has since become an annual highlight at Northwestern University, drawing influential speakers from all facets of the transportation industry.

William A. "Pat" Patterson was a central figure in the United States air transport industry for more than four decades. In this talk, Drs. Tara Lagu and Carol Haywood will discuss underrecognized health disparities experienced by people with disabilities in the United States and what is known about barriers to accessing health care. They will highlight their research on physician attitudes relating to care for people with disabilities, including findings from focus groups, where physicians described barriers in primary and specialty health care and resultant discriminatory practices. They will also share results from a nationwide survey of physicians, which revealed widespread ableism and gaps in knowledge to support safe and appropriate care for people with disabilities, as well as findings from recent focus groups with medical students and faculty leaders from across the country, who are engaged in advancing disability-related medical education. The discussion will end with a summary of best-practice recommendations to advance health care equity through accommodations in clinical care and changes to medical education.

CIERA Astronomer Evenings are special programs that take place on the last Friday of every month at Northwestern's Dearborn Observatory. Look through the historic telescope and meet and talk with astronomers from CIERA, Northwestern's Center for Interdisciplinary Exploration and Research in Astrophysics!
Each month, different experts will be available to answer your astronomy and astrophysics questions. These evenings begin with a 10-minute introduction to a topic in astronomy, followed by an open Q&A session and fun, interactive demonstrations.
The talks are free and open to all! No reservation needed.
Please note: The historic Dearborn Observatory building does not have an elevator. Several staircases must be climbed to reach the conference room and the telescope.

The International Institute for Nanotechnology (IIN) is pleased to host Xiaodong Chen for the Frontiers in Nanotechnology Seminar Series. "Conformal Nano-bio Interfaces for Sense Digitalization"

The rising demand for the interconnectedness of electronic devices and data science has led to a greater need for seamless human-electronic device integration.

However, the major challenge lies in the inability of conventional electronics to pick up reliable biological signals from the human body. This is due to fundamental mismatches such as incompatible surfaces (soft skin vs rigid sensors) and signal reading formats (physical vs. digital systems). The emerging nano-bio interfaces have created new opportunities for developing advanced sensing technologies with unparalleled sensitivity and specificity.

In this talk, I will present the development of conformal nano-bio interfaces that allow for the seamless integration of nanoelectronic interfaces into biological systems for sense digitalization with maintaining function even under deformed states. In addition, I will discuss the recent development of a biphasic, nano-dispersed (BIND) interface that can reliably connect soft, rigid, and encapsulation modules without the need for pastes.

Professor Xiaodong Chen is the President's Chair Professor of Materials Science and Engineering, as well as Professor of Chemistry and Medicine (by courtesy) at Nanyang Technological University (NTU) in Singapore. He also holds the position of Scientific Director and Principal Scientist at the Institute of Materials Research and Engineering at A*STAR in Singapore. Professor Chen's research interests include mechanomaterials science and engineering, flexible electronics technology, sense digitalization, cyber-human interfaces and systems, and carbon-negative technology.

Sarah Wood, MD, MSHP, leads a computational science lab that utilizes multiple sources of health system data to identify gaps in quality and equitable delivery of HIV prevention care. In this seminar, she will talk about how she uses the data derived from her lab in a rapid cycle innovation approach to develop and implement HIV prevention interventions focused on the Children's Hospital of Philadelphia's (CHOP) primary care network, clinicians, parents and guardians, and teens.

Dr. Wood is a physician scientist with a career mission to improve quality and equitable delivery of sexual and reproductive health care through developing and implementing innovative health care delivery strategies for adolescents and young adults. A former community health worker and HIV tester, she is now an assistant professor of pediatrics at the University of Pennsylvania Perelman School of Medicine; an attending physician, assistant director of adolescent HIV services, and a faculty member in PolicyLab at CHOP; and the co-director of the Clinical Core at Penn Center for AIDS Research. Dr. Wood provides medical care to youth living with and at risk of HIV at the CHOP Adolescent Initiative Clinic. Her NIMH-funded research focuses on developing and implementing HIV prevention interventions in adolescent primary care for youth with STIs.

Where: 1800 Sherman Avenue, Suite 3-000, Buffett Events Space, Evanston, IL

Contact: Northwestern Buffett, (847) 467-2770, buffettinstitute@northwestern.edu

In the midst of the ongoing revolution in global cross-cultural communication, there has never been a better time to embrace the virtually unlimited power of language. Dr. Marian's forthcoming book The Power of Language reveals that while you may think you can speak only one language, in fact your mind is built to master multiple codes of communication. Some people speak Spanish, some Mandarin. Some speak poetry, some are fluent in math. Most important, using multiple languages opens doors to creativity, brain health and cognitive control. And you can start today.

Every new language we speak shapes how we extract and interpret information. It alters what we remember, how we perceive ourselves and the world around us, how we feel, the insights we have, the decisions we make and the actions we take. Language is an invaluable tool for organizing, processing and structuring information, and thereby unleashing radical advancement.

A reception with wine, cheese and other refreshments will immediately follow the in-person program. In-person attendees will also receive a copy of The Power of Language. Register to attend in person, or register to attend online via Zoom.

As part of Northwestern University's Fulbright Week, the Northwestern Buffett Institute for Global Affairs will host a lecture from Dr. Amal Abdrabo, a Fulbright Visiting Scholar at Northwestern University and Assistant Professor at Alexandria University in Egypt. Dr. Abdrabo will be joined by her faculty host Dr. Jessica Winegar, Professor and Hamid Bin Khalifa Al-Thani Chair in Middle Eastern Studies in the Department of Anthropology at Northwestern's Weinberg College of Arts and Sciences. The lecture will examine the emergence of a new social contract represented by the Egyptian state and media as the "New Republic." Examining the discourses surrounding mega-desert projects, such as the government's new administrative capital outside of Cairo, the lecture will interrogate how the state communicates the dream of a "New Republic" to citizens and assess how this state discourse corresponds to individuals' hopes, if at all, and on what scale. This lecture is co-sponsored by the Middle East and North African Studies Program at Northwestern's Weinberg College of Arts and Sciences. Breakfast and registration will begin at 8:30 a.m., and the program will begin at 9:00 a.m.

LACS | Archaeology & Heritage series | Dwelling in the Hurricane's Path. Still Standing: The Ti Kais of Dominica.

Where: Online - Webcast Link
Contact: Margaret Sagan, margaret.sagan@northwestern.edu
Adom Philogene Heron, Jeanne Royer, and Marica Honychurch in conversation with Mark Hauser.
Still Standing shares stories of vernacular houses know as Ti Kai in Dominica, Eastern Caribbean. Blending architectural, photographic and ethnographic methods, this book offers portraits and social histories of hurricane hardy popular dwellings – many standing well over 100 years – that were crafted with an intimate knowledge of land, sea and sky. Often overlooked, associated with poverty and the past, these dwellings are under threat of human neglect, destruction, maintenance challenges and the of loss of the knowledge of those that built them (amongst elder carpenters who have passed on). This collaboratively researched and created book argues that at this moment, when the Caribbean begins to feel the devastating effects of planetary warming, we might look to the ti kai as a way of building with the elements. This event will celebrate the book's U.S. launch.

Bio:

Adom Philogene Heron is an ethnographer of the Caribbean whose work spans black ecologies, hurricanes and repair, post-slavery geographies, and Caribbean kinship. He is the PI on the £0.5M GCRF Surviving Storms | CCC project, aiming to digitally map hurricane survivals and repair in Dominica. He received his PhD in Anthropology from University of St. Andrews.

Though many White parents in the U.S. believe that racism is still a problem, it can be difficult for them to talk about race honestly with their children. In this talk Sylvia Perry, Associate Professor of Psychology at Northwestern, will discuss her research on why egalitarian-minded White U.S. parents avoid discussing race and racism with their children. Registration is not required but appreciated.

<https://forms.gle/aUrUgmEDsKBwsxwDA>

Dr. Sylvia Perry is an associate professor of psychology and an Institute for Policy Research faculty fellow at Northwestern University. Her research is situated at the intersection of social, developmental, and health psychology.

She investigates how racial bias awareness develops, and the implications of bias awareness for prejudice reduction, intergroup contact, and health disparities. In her most recent work, she explores how White parents in the U.S. socialize their children about race and racism and ways to encourage honest discussions about these topics. Dr. Perry was the 2022-23 SAGE Sara Miller McCune Fellow at the Center for Advanced Study in the Behavioral Sciences at Stanford University.

"The Tribal Constitutions Project"*

by Beth Redbird, Assistant Professor of Sociology and IPR and CNAIR Fellow Abstract: The development of tribal constitutions—and how these documents create and sustain claims to sovereign—is relatively unexplored. Yet the importance of tribal constitutions to Native self-governance is hard to overstate, and many tribal governments regard their constitutions as the cornerstone of self-determination and sovereignty. In the tribal context, constitutions are also influenced by settler-colonial processes aimed at the destruction of tribal self-determination. Beyond the legal ramifications, constitutions impact tribal culture, member wellbeing, and even tribal survival. Despite its importance, the study of tribal constitutions has developed in a patchwork manner, due to challenges identifying and acquiring the documents thought lost to history. This loss is not just unfortunate for researchers, it represents an erasure that tribes, subject to assimilation, have struggled against for years. The Tribal Constitutions Project (TCP) examines the evolution of tribal sovereignty through constitutionalization to understand the ways in which tribal sovereignty, Native agency, and settler-colonialism have structured modern Native Nations.

This is a hybrid event. No registration is needed to attend in person. Register here to attend by Zoom.

Lunch will be served during the in-person talk. Join us for a talk by Mark Fathi Massoud (politics, University of California, Santa Cruz) about his recent book, Shari'a, Inshallah: Finding God in Somali Legal Politics (Cambridge University Press, 2021)
Abstract: What is the relationship between faith, law, and society? How does religion strengthen the rule of law? Is the rule of law a theology or empire? Mark Fathi Massoud's Shari'a, Inshallah: Finding God in Somali Legal Politics (Cambridge University Press) answers these questions through historical research, ethnographic methods, and interviews in the Horn of Africa. For nearly 150 years, the Somali people have embraced shari'a, often translated as Islamic law, in the struggle for national identity and rights. Lawyers, community leaders, and activists have invoked God to oppose colonialism, resist dictators, expel warlords, and fight for gender equality -- key steps toward the rule of law. Shari'a, Inshallah upends secular accounts of legal progress and shows how faith in a higher power guides people to the rule of law.

Unruly Ecologies in the Ottoman Empire and Turkey: A speaker series with Dr. Erdem Evren

When: Wednesday, April 19, 2023, 12:30 PM - 2:00 PM Central
Where: Online

As the recent earthquakes in Turkey and Syria have once again demonstrated, more-than-human landscapes are inextricably linked to politics. The calamity has not only revealed that there is no such phenomenon as a "natural disaster" disconnected from political, economic, and social (f)actors, but it also showed that the naturalization of the disaster is central to the dereliction of political responsibility. At a time of intensifying and proliferating ruination and disasters worldwide, this speaker series will closely explore the politics of ecology and its limits by featuring scholars who work on more-than-human life in the Ottoman Empire and Turkey. The waters, soils, forests, wetlands, grasslands, plains, and mountains of the Empire and the Republic have long been subjected to forms of governing and technoscientific control to know, conquer, and benefit from what is cast as unruly natures. Yet, scholars have also pointed out the limits of this endeavor by showing the complex socio-material dynamics that challenge the will to tame. This speaker series will offer a reflection on new perspectives that close attention to ecological landscapes provides for the exploration of state formation, region-making, capitalist dispossession, infrastructural transformations, moral relations, and community building.

Northwestern University Transportation Center presents:

Traffic Flow as a Simple Fluid: Towards a Scaling Theory of Urban Congestion

Dr. Jorge Laval
Professor
Georgia Institute of Technology

Abstract:
The analogy between the theory of phase transitions in simple fluids and vehicular traffic flow has long been suspected, promising a new level of understanding of urban congestion by standing on one of the firmer foundations in physics. The obstacle has been the interpretation of the thermal energy of the gas-particle system, which remains unknown. This talk proposes the flow of cars through the network as a viable interpretation, where the fundamental diagram for traffic flow would be analogous to the coexistence curve in gas-liquid phase transitions. Thanks to the power-law form of the coexistence curve, it was possible to formalize that the resulting network traffic model belongs to the Kardar-Parisi-Zhang universality class in statistical mechanics. The scaling relationships arising in this universality class are found to be consistent with West's scaling theory for cities. It is shown that congestion costs (delays + fuel consumption) scale superlinearly with city population, possibly and worryingly more so than predicted by West's theory. Implications for sustainability and resiliency are discussed.

ISMGH is delighted to invite you to the first of two presentations in April for our "Current Issues in LGBTQ Health" lecture series, co-sponsored by the THRIVE Center. The first event will feature Gilbert Gonzales, Ph.D. from the Vanderbilt University Department of Health Policy.

Date: Tuesday, April 11, 2023

Time: 10:00 - 11:00am Central Time

Location: 625 N. Michigan Avenue, Suite 1400 Chicago, IL, 60611

This hybrid event is free and open to the public, but registration is required.

Please complete the registration form using the link below to register.

About the Speaker:

Gilbert Gonzales, PhD, MHA, is an Assistant Professor at the Center for Medicine, Health & Society, the Program for Public Policy Studies, and the Department of Health Policy at Vanderbilt University. Professor Gonzales' research examines how public policies affect health outcomes, access to care, and health disparities for lesbian, gay, bisexual, and transgender (LGBT) populations. He also studies the role of health care reforms on vulnerable populations. His research has appeared in the American Journal of Public Health, Pediatrics, JAMA, Health Affairs, The Milbank Quarterly, and the New England Journal of Medicine.

A discussion of environmental, activist, and Indigenous energies with Nick Estes and Dallas Goldtooth, moderated by Doug Kiel.

*Co-presented with the Center for Native American and Indigenous Research, this event is the rescheduled winter keynote of the Kaplan Humanities Institute's 2022-2023 Dialogue. ENERGIES: A year-long conversation about energies—personal, collective, planetary—from different humanistic perspectives.

This event brings together Indigenous activist-scholars to foreground the Indigenous lands and nations on the front lines not just of the climate crisis but also of collective actions seeking different futures. As the climate crisis continues to be fueled by energy extraction and an inability on the part of nation states and corporations to divest from capitalism, we focus in on Indigenous resistance movements to protect the environment. We ask:

What are the forms of activism and collective organizing that are shaping Indigenous movements for lands and waters?

Where do activist energies intersect with artistic and scholarly ones?

We hope this conversation reflects both on the urgency of energy crises as well on long-standing Indigenous collective energies.

Nick Estes is Kul Wicasa, a citizen of the Lower Brule Sioux Tribe. He is Assistant Professor in the Department of American Indian Studies at University of Minnesota, cofounder of The Red Nation, and author of Our History Is the Future: Standing Rock Versus the Dakota Access Pipeline.

Dallas Goldtooth (Mdewakanton Dakota & Diné) is an organizer for the Indigenous Environmental Network, writer for FX's Reservation Dogs, and a cofounder of The 1491 comedy group.

Moderator: Doug Kiel (a citizen of the Oneida Nation) is Assistant Professor in Northwestern's Department of History, Kaplan Humanities Institute, and Center for Native American and Indigenous Research.

Tickets are free for this event; public welcome! Space is limited. RSVPs (tickets) are not required, but appreciated, as they help us anticipate attendance numbers. Reception with refreshments will follow the conversation.

This program assembles a rich selection of late-nineteenth and early-twentieth century films that reflect the medical community's growing interest in using cinema as a tool for documentation, diagnosis, and self-promotion, and the general public's interest in the human body as a site of spectacle.

The use of film as a tool to study human motion and physiology began in the 1890s with the chronophotographic films of Étienne-Jules Marey, the French physician and scientist whose inventions helped forge the emergence of cinema and modern cardiography alike (and who was a primary inspiration for artist Dario Robleto's current Block exhibition, The Heart's Knowledge). From documentations of neuropathological disorders to surgical demonstrations, cinema soon allowed medical professionals to train students, to spread awareness of new techniques to peers, and to further the public exposure to advancements in medicine.

The films in this program, drawn from archival collections across the US, Europe, and Latin America, reveal the many ways that early cinema shaped popular awareness around medicine and health. Exercise and bodybuilding films promoted emerging cultures of hygiene and fitness; short comedy films depicted new and improved medical technologies in x-rays and surgery; the scientific films of microbiologist Jean Comandon were financed and released by commercial distributor Pathé—examples that attest to the public's fascination with science, and to the spectacular (and visceral) appeal of the cinema at the dawn of the 20th century.

With introduction and commentary by guest curator Patrick Friel.

Viewer advisory: some of the films in this program include graphic and potentially disturbing content.

Thought Leader Dialogue: AI Education

Where: Online - Webcast Link Here

Contact: Elizabeth Gerber, egerber@northwestern.edu

Artificial intelligence (AI) is becoming increasingly integrated across our technology ecosystem, yet public understanding of AI is limited. AI education initiatives are needed to aid people in making informed decisions about their personal technology use, AI-related policy decisions, and the role AI should play in their schools and workplaces. In addition, widespread AI literacy has the potential to equip the public with skills needed to collaborate and create with rapidly changing AI technologies. Join Northwestern's Center for Human-Computer Interaction + Design for an engaging conversation about fostering public AI literacy through initiatives such as incorporating AI in K-12 education, designing novel and creative AI learning experiences, and engaging adults in learning and decision-making about AI in their communities. This panel will explore best practices for designing AI learning experiences, how to ensure access to AI education is inclusive and equitable, and what AI education may look like across different populations. Each speaker will give a short presentation on their research related to AI education.

Speakers include Dr. Cynthia Breazeal (MIT), Dr. Christina Gardner-McCune (University of Florida), and Dr. Ken Holstein (Carnegie Mellon). Presentations will be followed by a panel discussion moderated by Dr. Duri Long, Northwestern's Center for Human Computer Interaction + Design.

Glitches in crowdsourced data. Jittery zooms and pans. Orphaned information and free-floating symbology.

Since its Lisbon premiere in April 2022, A Synesthete's Atlas has been performed in a dozen-plus US cities in collaboration with improvising musicians, movement- and spoken word artists. Theise's projection platform is based on OpenStreetMap data, a collection of open-source mapping libraries, and a few thousand lines of his own JavaScript code. The performance will last 50 minutes and will occasionally introduce strobing effects that may affect photosensitive viewers.

Dr. Stephanie A. Fryberg, a member of the Tulalip Tribes of Washington State, is the Director of The Research for Indigenous Social Action and Equity. Dr. Fryberg is also a Diversity and Social Transformation Professor of Psychology at the University of Michigan. As a social and cultural psychologist, her research focuses on how social representations of race, culture, and social class influence the development of self, psychological well-being, physical health, and educational attainment.

“In the U.S. cultural imagination, Indigenous Peoples loom large in romanticized and stereotyped ways, yet contemporary Indigenous Peoples are largely omitted from the public conscience. In K-12 education, for example, 87% of references to Indigenous Americans portray them in a pre-1900’s context. In mainstream media, less than .5% of representations are of contemporary Indigenous Peoples. Utilizing both experimental and national survey studies, I will demonstrate that prevalent representations of Indigenous Peoples (or the lack thereof) shape how people think, feel, and subsequently act towards Indigenous Peoples, as well as how Indigenous Peoples feel about themselves and act to make change in society.”
