Behold, Be Held

When: Tuesday, 6/1/21-8/22/21, All Day

Where: Block Museum of Art, 40 Arts Circle Drive, Evanston, IL 60208

Cost: Free

Contact: Nancy Gelman, 847-491-2612

While the past year has altered so much in our lives, it has also highlighted how art remains a vital window into our feelings and experiences. Behold, Be Held uses the facades of The Block, the neighboring Ethel M. Barber Theater, and the building of our community partner Youth & Opportunity United (Y.O.U.) as an outdoor gallery. Reproductions of artworks from the Block Museum collection invite visitors to reflect on how art holds us through moments of crisis. These works capture gestures that we may have taken for granted prior to the pandemic, but we have missed dearly. The selection of works was guided by themes of self-care, self-authorship, and community. It also explores how subtle moments with others prepare and carry us on our journeys.

Can Exercise Slow Parkinson's Disease Progression

When: Wednesday, 7/21/21, 4:00PM-5:00PM CT

Where: Online, Free

Contact: Jillian Kurtz Brubaker, 312-503-3926, jillian.brubaker@northwestern.edu

Parkinson's disease is the second most prevalent neurodegenerative disease behind Alzheimer's disease. Nearly one million people have Parkinson's disease in the US, and 60,000 people are newly diagnosed each year. The disease signs and symptoms include progressive loss of muscle control, trembling, stiffness, slowness, and impaired balance. As the disease progresses, it may become difficult to walk, talk, and complete simple tasks. Most people who develop Parkinson's disease are 60 and older. Daniel Corcos, PhD, is a professor of Physical Therapy & Human Movement Sciences at Northwestern University Feinberg School of Medicine, where he conducts innovative research to identify treatments to help people with Parkinson's disease and stroke survivors live their lives to the fullest. Dr. Corcos will share findings from his research, which has demonstrated how exercise is important for improving brain health, and how progressive resistance exercise and endurance exercise are beneficial to people living with Parkinson's disease.

Other Courses

The Music Academy Piano Division offers pre-piano class, which serves as an introduction to more formal piano instruction: keyboard instruction in two tracks for students ages 6 to 18, and instruction for adults. After the first year of study, most children participate in the Illinois State Music Teacher's Association curriculum assessment, where they demonstrate skills and receive certificates and pins for participation.

The String Division offers private lessons in violin, viola, and cello, with goals of both providing musical instruction and instilling a love of music and of learning music. The division believes that all children can learn to their potential when placed in an environment that includes clear instruction, an involved parent, and regular opportunities to listen to and perform.
