

All Gender Housing Guide

Northwestern | STUDENT AFFAIRS
Residential Services

All Gender Housing refers to an arrangement whereby students, regardless of sex, gender, or gender identity, are permitted to share a room or suite in select areas of Northwestern's campus residences. The primary reason for such a policy is to provide housing options that take into consideration all identities and preferences, and to ensure a safe and comfortable environment for all students. All Gender Housing is not intended for romantic couples.

All undergraduate students have the opportunity to opt in to All Gender Housing.

In Graduate Housing, residents can elect for their own apartment to be considered all gender, though there are not designated floors for All Gender Housing.

Throughout the guide, you will see some pride flags or color coding in an effort to make things more clear and accessible, not to delimit possible gender identities or expressions.

Rooms are not marked as they appear on the guide, and we hope that the illustrations shed light on the many possibilities for gender affirming assignments.
