Wildcat Advice

“Cherish the experiences and relationships you build along the way. Your time at NU is a unique opportunity for growth and discovery.”

“Northwestern will want you to measure your time in weeks of assignments but I encourage you to take in the fullness of each day. Don’t wish for weekends when you could be enjoying your Wednesday.”

“Prioritize your well-being and work on finding a healthy balance between academics and other aspects of life. Keep an open mind and be ready to learn, grow, and create amazing memories during your time at NU. Enjoy the journey!”

“Embrace the diversity of experiences and perspectives around you. Get involved in activities that interest you, whether it's joining clubs, sports teams, or research projects. Don't be afraid to introduce yourself to your professors and peers; building relationships early on can lead to valuable connections and support throughout your time at NU. Explore the campus and take advantage of resources like tutoring centers and counseling services when needed.”
